razor webserver , why when i open   a new window the server does not boot a new state instead keeps the same state from the other window

When using a Razor web server, or any web server for that matter, if you're noticing that opening a new window or tab doesn't result in the server booting into a new state but instead maintains the same state as the other window, it's because web servers are typically stateless by design when it comes to individual requests.
